

Colleges attended by former Oxbridge Academics students

Students from the summer of 2008 are currently enrolled at the following colleges (as of 2009):

Overseas (6)	Harvard (2)
St Andrews, Scotland (1)	Hillsdale College (1)
St George's, University of London, England (1)	Johns Hopkins University (1)
University College London, England (1)	Northwestern University (2)
University of Buenos Aires, Argentina (1)	Princeton (1)
University of Edinburgh, Scotland (2)	Sarah Lawrence College (1)
American University (1)	Stanford (1)
Azusa Pacific University (1)	The George Washington University (2)
Boston College (1)	Tufts University (1)
Brown (1)	University of British Columbia (3)
Bucknell University (1)	University of Florida (1)
Colgate University (1)	University of Illinois Chicago (1)
Columbia (1)	University of Maryland (1)
Drake University (1)	University of New England (1)
Drew University (1)	University of Pennsylvania (2)
Fordham (1)	University of Washington (1)
	Wellesley College (1)
	Yale (1)

"I think the greatest part of the program was further feeding my interests AND creating a network of students who are scattered across the country. Some of my best friends have come from the people I met at CamTrad and I think it is amazing that I find myself talking to my roommates at the College about that summer in Cambridge. I plan to major in government and continue my creative writing well beyond even my college years." Cambridge Tradition attendee, now at Harvard.

"Oxbridge helped me understand how satisfying living in a foreign country can be, and how useful learning French could be. It was an experience I will never forget." Académie de Paris attendee, now at Tufts University.

"Oxbridge made the transition into college so much easier. I really loved the program and I would recommend it to anyone and everyone. It definitely helped me become who I am today." Oxford Tradition attendee, now at the University of Pennsylvania.

"I grew a lot during the program. The time I spent and the things I learned were invaluable to me. I always knew I would go into the arts, but being a part of it in England was truly amazing. It only gave me a little taste of the country and the world outside of what I know. I am definitely planning on studying abroad during my college years and now I can go back to Cambridge and see the places I saw two years ago!" Cambridge Tradition attendee, now at Drew University.

"Besides being a wonderful experience, the Oxbridge program solidified my interest in the sciences and provided me with my first interaction with the Gurdon Institute in Cambridge and thus the world of research. I am currently conducting research on lung surfactant protein and I intend to start a side project working with Viral vectors this summer. The Oxbridge experience gave me more confidence pursuing my interests." Cambridge Tradition attendee, now at the University of Florida.

"Oxbridge was my first experience abroad and away from home. It was an amazing experience which changed my view on the world and helped me develop my Spanish and understanding of new places. It was an amazing month that I know I will never forget!" Academia de Espana attendee, now at Wellesley College.